DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1 to 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arst (3,359,077).

The Arst reference teaches an apparatus for crystal growth by the czochralski method, note entire reference. The apparatus consists of a chamber, which surrounds the crucible. There is a crucible for containing a melt. The crucible is surrounded by a heater, which is capable of melting materials. There is a bar, which is lowered and raised with a seed. The bar creates the single crystal. There is a thermal insulating wall surrounding the heater with a cover plate. There is a hole in the plate to allow for the bar and crystal to pass, note figure 1. The apparatus is capable of growing metal fluoride crystals. The sole difference between the instant claims and the prior art is the material of the cover plate and thermal conductivity of the plate. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to determine through routine experimentation the optimum, operable cover plate materials and properties in the Arst reference in order to create uniform temperature gradients in the area above the crucible which creates a more uniform crystal.

Response to Applicants' Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed June 23, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants' argument concerning the Arst reference has been considered and not deemed persuasive. The instant claims are drawn to an apparatus, not a use or process. Thus, the use of the apparatus is given little weight in determining patentability and the prior merely needs to teach the apparatus limitations. The Arst reference does in fact teach the apparatus limitations of the instant claims. The placement of the ceiling board is noted. However, other claims dependent on claim 1 limit the size of the ceiling board. The Arst reference, in view of the limitations of the ceiling board height claimed, clearly meets the height of the ceiling board. The material that is used in the construction of the ceiling board would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art in order to keep the heat in one area. It is duly noted that the art of czochralski apparatus teaches having a heat zone above the crucible.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
